4. 2025/0783/FI - SERV - INFORMATION SOCIETY SERVICES

5. Government proposal to Parliament for a Emergency Powers Act and amending Chapter 46, Section 1 of the Criminal Code

6. Essential communication services

7.

8. The proposal suggests enacting a new Emergency Powers Act, which would repeal the current act of the same name. The objective of the reform is to bring the Emergency Powers Act into line with a modern understanding of comprehensive security of society and the threats facing it. The aim is to create a coherent, up-to-date regulatory framework that is compatible with the Constitution, provides the conditions for making timely decisions to manage emergency conditions, and includes appropriate and sufficient powers to implement those decisions.

Chapter 18 of the proposed act would lay down provisions on powers relating to information society services, that is, electronic communications services. (pp. 275-282, 404-405)

9. The Act is proposed to include powers relating to electronic communications services, the purpose of which is to safeguard communications services that are essential to the functioning of society, even in emergency conditions. Electronic communications services are used throughout society and, in practice, form the foundation for organizing society's core functions, namely public services and government operations.

Please note that the draft concerns legislation prepared for emergency conditions. These provisions are intended to be applied only if a state of emergency is declared in Finland, and even then only to the extent necessary for managing the emergency. The implementation and application of the provisions also always require separate, lower-level regulations, which are considered by Parliament.
