5. Royal Decree amending the Royal Decree of 23 September 1958 laying down general regulations for explosives and of the Royal Decree of 20 October 2015 concerning the availability on the market of pyrotechnic products

6. The sale and possession of certain types of pyrotechnic products

7.

8. For some types of pyrotechnic products, storage conditions have been eased for traders that only store small quantities. These traders are no longer required to apply for a permit for storage of this kind.

For certain other products, in particular sound generators and flash generators of category P1, flares of category P1, Bengal lights of category T1 and smoke generators of categories T1 and P1, over-the-counter sales to individuals and possession by individuals are prohibited.

These products are not being withdrawn from the market and sales to professional users and traders with a permit to store and/or transport them is still possible.

An exception is provided that nevertheless allows individuals to obtain certain products needed for distress signalling.

As regards content, the draft is very similar to the previously notified draft 2023/0585/B, but without adjusting the minimum age for categories F1 and F2. The decision on the matter was annulled by the Belgian Council of State and is partially reinstated by this draft.

9. For certain products, the obligation to apply for a storage permit is considered to be superfluous for small quantities. Therefore, this obligation will be repealed. In particular, this involves sparklers and fountain sparklers of category F1 that are suitable for indoor use and certain pyrotechnic products for pest control in category P1.

Certain other pyrotechnic products are often used in disturbances and hooliganism. They cause a nuisance. Certain products in category P1 are also misused as heavy explosive fireworks. The over-the-counter sale of these products to individuals is therefore no longer permitted. Professional users with a permit are still able to purchase these products.
