

IN SHORT: Reducing the amount of motor vehicle tax in cases where a vehicle is removed from the traffic register and for the period when it is declared missing is a constitutionally sound and positive change for all vehicle owners concerned. Once the law enters into force, a proportional restriction of the fundamental right to property will be ensured, whereby persons will no longer be obliged to pay for property that is no longer in the traffic register or that they are unable to use.